

Alocet

To Whom It May Concern:

In our experience, a business should never substitute proximity for quality. When Alocet, our Ontario-based software company, sought out telemarketing companies to boost our lead generation abilities, we could have selected a nearby firm. Instead, we wanted the best.

We chose British Columbia-based LGI because they specialize in generating leads for high tech companies like our own. Since 1999, Alocet has helped thousands of clients increase their efficiency by providing software solutions that automate day-to-day operations such as scheduling, invoicing, contact management, and other tasks.

At first, we worried about signing a contract with a firm that was four thousand kilometers away. But LGI is exceptionally skilled in its specialty, and the deal has generated a substantial quantity of viable leads for our company. We have complete faith in LGI's abilities and reputation because we have seen their team's results first-hand.

LGI has worked exceptionally hard for Alocet, and we recommend them without hesitation to other businesses—except our competitors!
